

THE STAR office is connected with the Telephone Exchange. Advertisements, orders for the paper by mail or otherwise, or any information or business can be sent day or night. Free of charge.

Persons saving the city for the summer can have THE STAR delivered to their homes, postpaid, and charged as often as desired, for fifty cents a month, invariably in advance.

Double Sheet Star Tomorrow.
Advertisers will accommodate us and at the same time advance their own interests by sending in their announcements for to-morrow's eight-page Star as early in the day as possible, and in all cases before 10 o'clock, in order that the same may be properly classified. The exceptionally large demand for these popular issues requires the forms to be put upon the presses earlier than usual, and renders this request necessary.

Bringing Home the Facts.
The contrast between the arguments of the prosecution and defense in the Star route cases is so marked that it arrests the attention of the most casual reader, and, of course, the effect must be infinitely greater upon the jury, who hear of both sides. The prosecution present plain and indisputable facts, brought out in the evidence and supported in many cases by figures; the defense deal in generalities, sometimes of a glittering and sometimes of a brilliant character, and, possibly with the view of confusing the minds of the jury. That course, perhaps, is all that is left to the defense. Having utterly failed to overthrow or weaken any of the damaging proofs furnished by the government, counsel for defendants undertake to distract the attention of the jury from the real elements and evidence of the case. The argument of Mr. Bliss yesterday illustrated the wide difference not only between the arguments, but also in the kind and character of evidence presented by the opposing sides. In the beginning he briefly reviewed the flimsy character of the testimony for the defense, and he followed this by recalling to the jury some of the hard, stubborn, undisputed and indisputable facts put in evidence by the government. To make the charge of regularity and regularity of the Star service, he recalled the testimony showing that thousands of dollars had been paid to contractors to carry the mail on slower time than it was actually being carried on when these orders were issued. In other words, he showed that the charge of "expediting" backward. He showed the increase of the pay of a route enormously under the pretext of increasing the schedule time, when in fact, as was proved by numerous witnesses, the schedule time had been made under the original contract was faster than the time called for in the expedition. Mr. Bliss mentioned Peck & Co.'s California route as one in which this method of getting money from the Treasury for division of the ring was used. One order increased the pay of the route by $700, ostensibly for an increase of speed, while in truth the regularity made prior to the issuance of the order was faster than that called for in the expedition. This $700 was taken from the government in one lump, without any improvement in the route mentioned. Mr. Bliss declared that this $700, and other sums similarly taken from the Treasury fraudulently, went not to the contractors or sub-contractors, who actually performed the mail service, but to the ring in Washington. On another route, from Kearney to Kent at one time $2,800 was allowed for "expedition" when the "evidence was undisputed that the mails had been carried all the time at a rate as fast as the expected time. More than this the subcontractor who was carrying the route knew, and all this total brought the fact to light that $2,800 had been wrong from the Treasury in the pretense that the people he was serving desired faster mails. He was performing this service for $1,800 per year, while Brany was allowing $4,800 for it, and the difference went into the pockets of the ring. Mr. Bliss omitted another route in proof of the fact that the pay was increased from $2,982 to $4,000,313 ostensibly for expedition, and because it was a great through route, when in fact the testimony of the postmasters along the route showed that for 18 days the mail bag carried did not contain a single letter, and what little mail was carried was gathered up at way stations. Mr. Bliss' speech of yesterday was composed mainly of just such illustrations of dishonesty and corruption, taken from the evidence in the case, as have been mentioned. It cleared away the confusion, if any existed, in the minds of the jury, and recalled their attention to the part of the case they must pass upon—the evidence. Counsel for the defense had, in their extremely, read lead to the jury in copious quantity, impressing upon them a part of the case they have nothing to do with. Mr. Bliss put before the jury that part of the case which belongs to them, in all its force and strength.

A special in yesterday's Star announced the election of Lewis Cass Smith to succeed Senator Johnson in the Presidency of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal company. Smith is Governor's man, and his election keeps the control of the canal in the hands of the Gorman faction of the Maryland democracy as opposed to the Hamilton and Whyte factions. The question of the fitness of the man for the place does not seem to have been given consideration, but it is probable that Smith is as good as well qualified for it as any of the candidates put forward by the other factions. It is to be hoped that the canal will sometime or other be placed in the hands of a man who will be able to defend him in their extreme, read lead to the jury in copious quantity, impressing upon them a part of the case they have nothing to do with. Mr. Bliss put before the jury that part of the case which belongs to them, in all its force and strength.

The summary arrest and sentence of Mr. R. Dwyer Gray, in Dublin, is generally condemned as an arbitrary stretch of judicial power. Even in London Judge Lawson's action seems to be regarded as hasty and ill-advised by a portion of the press, and it is possible that it may not be approved by the government. In the discussion of the matter in Parliament Mr. Gladstone indirectly suggested an address to the crown for the removal of Judge Lawson, which the Irish members were regarded as signifying his disapproval of the court, as they greeted with loud cheers. It may be that in his zeal to commend himself to the government by dealing harshly with the prevailing Irish sentiment, this judge has done himself and his prospects more injury than he has inflicted upon Mr. Gray.

The military preparations at Alexandria indicate an early advance movement by the British against the Egyptians, and stirring news may be expected from that quarter very soon. General Wolsley takes command in person, and he is not given to delays in work of this kind. One of the official acts of the British has been to create a military officer order of press messages, which shows that they intend to win the Egyptian campaign if they do not in the field. Inasmuch as all reports of the campaign will have to be submitted to an English army officer and meet his approval, they must probably be received with some grains of allowance.

It is again asserted that the miners' strike at Omberfield is about at an end. The heretofore statements to the same effect have always proved to be "too previous," but there may be something in this one, as yesterday a number of the strikers applied to the George's Creek company and American company for re-instatement at the old rates.

Beautiful, beautiful childhood! with a joy that like a robe is flung about the flange of life. Out by your every motion, a delicate bud of the immortal flower that will unfold and come to its maturity in heaven! I weep your early glory. The light sent to the new-born spirit that is lost with the first life wind. It is the lot of the first-born child to be a martyr, and to die upon the cross of its own life. The face of the delightful earth will to your eye grow dim, the fragrance of the many flowers be noticed not, and the beautiful voice of Nature in her song will be to you as the voice of a stranger.

And such like hopefulness of Saffron's Oisera.
